

Jotwell 2020 Summer Break

Author : Jotwell

Date : August 17, 2020

Jotwell is taking a short summer break. We'll be back on Monday, August 31. However, even while we're on break, we'll be accepting submissions, editing them, and updating various technical parts of the site.

Now that you know how much you miss us, this is good time to ask you to please help support Jotwell; your donation, however small, helps demonstrate the breadth of support for the enterprise.

If you like Jotwell, share — help us find more readers. Tell a friend about Jotwell. And if you are an academic reader, please consider recommending Jotwell to your students. We have a Jotwell Orientation Flyer for students that you can print out and post, or perhaps even hand out at Orientation.

JOTWELL

THE JOURNAL OF THINGS WE LIKE (LOTS)

Celebrating Excellent Legal Scholarship

Jotwell is an online, blog-style law review that publishes reviews of the most interesting and relevant law journal articles. Reviews are short—typically 500-1000 words—and easy to read, even if you don't (yet) specialize in any particular legal field. Jotwell's reviewers and 300+ Contributing Editors are leading professors and professionals from around the world. Jotwell's Editor-in-Chief is A. Michael Froomkin, Laurie Silvers & Mitchell Rubenstein Distinguished Professor of Law at the University of Miami.

WHY SHOULD LAW STUDENTS READ JOTWELL?

- Keep up-to-date on the most pressing issues in law (and beyond)
- Reviews are written to appeal to people who are not yet legal experts
- Reviews take only minutes to read, but give you a taste of articles and books that might inspire further reading
- Learn about a wide range of topics, including mandatory 1L classes such as Torts, Criminal Law, and Property
- Expand your thinking
- Get inside of your professors' minds and get useful ideas to enrich your own writing
