

JOTWELL

THE JOURNAL OF THINGS WE LIKE (LOTS)

Celebrating Excellent Legal Scholarship

Jotwell is an online, blog-style law review that publishes reviews of the most interesting and relevant law journal articles. Reviews are short—typically 500-1000 words—and easy to read, even if you don't (yet) specialize in any particular legal field. Jotwell's reviewers and 300+ Contributing Editors are leading professors and professionals from around the world. Jotwell's Editor-in-Chief is A. Michael Froomkin, Laurie Silvers & Mitchell Rubenstein Distinguished Professor of Law at the University of Miami.

WHY SHOULD LAW STUDENTS READ JOTWELL?

- Keep up-to-date on the most pressing issues in law (and beyond)
- Reviews are written to appeal to people who are not yet legal experts
- Reviews take only minutes to read, but give you a taste of articles and books that might inspire further reading
- Learn about a wide range of topics, including mandatory 1L classes such as Torts, Criminal Law, and Property
- Expand your thinking
- Get inside of your professors' minds and get useful ideas to enrich your own writing
